COMMERCIAL WORK

Inspired Metal have had the pleasure of fabricating and installing some very high profile commercial projects - everything from street furniture to sculptures and entrance screens. The following pages show two of our favourites - Southgate Bath and The Newt in Somerset.

"I've had the pleasure of working with the amazing team at Inspired Metal for a number of bespoke projects. They are always enthusiastic and passionate. The work produced has come in as promised, on time and on budget. I highly recommend them to anyone."

RESIDENTIAL WORK

As well as large commercial works, we also design and fabricate bespoke items for our valued private clients - everything from doors to staircases, handrails, screens, shelving and everything inbetween.

What could we make for you?

"We are so pleased with our copper work surface, which brings an understated warmth to the kitchen. It is also robust and hardwearing and, with the changing patina, just improves with time."

I'M DECOR METALS

Brass is a copper zinc alloy that has enjoyed a resurgence over the last few years, in part thanks to its increasing popularity with interior designers.

Copper is the base metal at the heart of all the yellow metal alloys. Its soft, malleable, corrosion resistant characteristics have leant it to almost endless uses over the centuries. It also has natural anti-microbial properties which make it popular within the catering sector.

Stainless steel is a popular metal, mostly because of its strength and anti-corrosive properties. The surface can be left bare and is generally given either a satin or polished finish.

Used extensively in sheet form, Zinc is ideal for counter tops and cooker hoods. Soft to the touch and resistant to corrosion, zinc has a natural appearance that, like copper and brass, will oxidise and change naturally with time and use.
